October 2013

Walt's View

The WVDA took a major step in its Farm to School (FTS) initiative September 13, when we hosted an FTS event at Preston High School in Kingwood. Students enjoyed a lunch that – except for the bananas and the milk – was entirely locally sourced. The menu included hamburgers, broccoli, mashed potatoes and buns made from locally grown and ground wheat.

We held this event to highlight my administration's emphasis on Farm to School programs. Schools spend somewhere around $100 million each year on meals for students. That's far too much of our tax dollars to send to out-of-state food producers. With the groundwork that has been put in place in Preston County, we expect to see locally grown products on meal trays every day of the school year.

It's important to note that the WVDA has not been solely responsible for the program at Preston High, nor is it the only school using local foods in their cafeterias - far from it.

The West Virginia Department of Education (WVDE) was represented at Preston High by Child Nutrition Coordinator Bekki Leigh. Also present were local legislators Larry Williams, Randy Smith, Extension Agent Bill Shockey, Preston County Nutrition Coordinator Charlene Strahin and Tom McConnell, West Virginia University (WVU) Small Farm Center Program Leader – all of whom helped bring this particular project to fruition.

In addition, the cooperation of the cooks, administration and food service personnel in Preston County cannot be overstated.

Farm to School Initiative Shows Great Promise

Without buy-in at the local level, none of this would be possible. Perhaps the only person less involved was the custodian on lunch duty, who said he took out a quarter of the garbage he normally does. The students were actually eating lunch rather than carrying most of it to the trash can.

The WVDE, Extension agents and numerous other groups and individuals have been very active over the past two or three years developing FTS programs throughout the state. According to the WVDE, more than 30 of the state's 55 counties bought at membership is growing, and I believe more students are seeing agriculture as a potential career choice and farming as a way they can become independent entrepreneurs.

What we need is for farmers to recognize the golden opportunity that is now available. School systems are very receptive to using local foods. They see the economic and nutritional benefits FTS provides. Despite substantial progress on the FTS front, West Virginia farms sold only $400,000 in products to schools last year – out of $100 million overall. Farmers need to put season-extending technologies into production, reach out to my office or school food service directors in their areas, and help grow our state's economy from within. I think we garnered a lot of media attention for everyone involved in FTS with our event. I hope those who are not yet involved in FTS were paying attention.

Ag education at the college level took a giant leap in Morgantown last month. West Virginia University's Davis College of Agriculture, Natural Resources and Design broke ground on a brand new Agricultural Sciences Building September 12. When completed, it will house administrative units and three of the college's five academic divisions — Animal and Nutritional Sciences, Plant and Soil Sciences, and Resource Management. The five-story, 200,000 square foot-plus building will include classrooms, lecture halls, design studios, cutting-edge laboratories and space for the WVU Extension Service's Agriculture and Natural Resources Unit.

The project, which is currently out on bid, includes construction of the new Agricultural Sciences Building and demolition of the current building. Construction is expected to be completed by December 2015, with the demolition of the current building projected scheduled for early 2016.

FARM TO SCHOOL

West Virginia Department of Education representative Bekki Leigh talks with students about the importance of Farm To School programs, while West Virginia Department of Agriculture Special Projects Coordinator Dave Miller and Commissioner of Agriculture Walt Helmick look on. During his time, Commissioner Helmick encouraged students to consider starting their own farm businesses and becoming agricultural entrepreneurs.

least some of their school food from local producers.

In some schools, the students themselves are producing food for the school cafeteria as part of agriculture and culinary education programs. FFA

WVDA MISSION STATEMENT . . . The mission of the West Virginia Department of Agriculture is to protect plant, animal and human health and the state's food supply through a variety of scientific and regulatory programs; to provide vision, strategic planning and emergency response for agricultural and other civil emergencies; to promote industrial safety and protect consumers through educational and regulatory programs; and to foster economic growth by promoting West Virginia agriculture and agribusinesses throughout the state and abroad.

This is a huge development for our state's Land Grant university. It will help draw the best teaching talent and will further encourage college-bound students from West Virginia to consider an agricultural degree. There is far more to modern agriculture than just tilling the soil. There are a huge variety of professional career options in the field and graduates with the proper skills and education are in demand.

Farmers are not just focused on schools lately. I recently attended the grand opening of the Barbour County Garden Market. Market Manager Reg Trefethen is moving the market into a 7,200-square-foot building that housed the Philippi IGA until it closed in 2009.

The concept is to incorporate a traditional farmers' market with a community café. The market has seating for 60 and serves fresh donuts and gourmet coffee. They plan to open a "local-only" diner next year, serving sandwiches, soups and salads made with local items. They have modern amenities to encourage customers to visit, including a public wi-fi router and a big screen TV for WVU and Alderson-Broadus College sporting events.

The move was made possible by a significant jump in the produce being grown in Barbour County. Thanks to the expertise and prodding of WVU Small Farm Center Program Leader Tom McConnell and WVU Extension Service Horticulture Specialist Lewis Jett, 13 farms in the area are now using high tunnels to extend the growing season and increase their yields.

Parkersburg will also open an indoor farmers' market in the former Swan Hotel this month. The indoor venue will extend the popular outdoor venue. The grand opening is scheduled for October 5. The market will be open the first Saturday of each month through April.

I'd like to thank everyone involved with the West Virginia Conservation Farm Tour held last month. I had a great time and was thoroughly impressed with the three farms we visited: Daniel Vineyard in Raleigh County, Meadow Green Farm in Jefferson County and Hieronimus Farm in Marshall County. These three finalists were selected from among a number of farms throughout the state. The top farm will be announced at the state Conservation Conference Oct. 29, but it's safe to say that all three are winners in every regard.

Capitol Market

Commissioner Helmick chatted with Jillian Webb who was visiting Capitol Market in Charleston recently.

Okes Family Farm

Commissioner Helmick promoted West Virginia's agritourism industry recently with a visit to the Okes Family Farm in Raleigh County. Local school children cut the ribbon on the corn maze for the 2013 season, played in the corn pit and enjoyed a wagon ride to the pumpkin patch.

For more information on the Okes Family Farm visit okesfamilyfarms.com For more information on statewide Agritourism locations, see article on page 5.

State Tree Nursery Taking Orders

Clements State Tree Nursery is now taking orders for the 2013-2014 planting season. This year's inventory includes five evergreens: white, Virginia and Scotch pines, Norway spruce and Douglas fir. In addition, the nursery offers 22 deciduous species, including varieties of oaks and dogwoods, sugar maple, tulip poplar and sycamore. American chestnut seedlings grown from seed of trees that show resistance to chestnut blight are available, and usually sell out quickly.

All trees are bare-root seedlings and are one to two years old. Seedlings are sold in bundles of 25. Prices depend on the number of seedlings ordered, and there is a 30 percent discount offered on orders of 5,000 or more. Seedlings are grown from seed sources within West Virginia and surrounding states, and are suitable for reforestation, coal mine reclamation, wildlife cover and Christmas tree production.

Order online at www.wvcommerce.org/ClementsNursery or call 304-675-1820 to request a catalog.

Seedlings can be purchased for fall or spring planting; deliveries start the week of Thanksgiving.

For more information about Clements State Tree Nursery, visit the Division of Forestry's website at www.wvforestry.com.

Farm Tour Weekend in Greenbrier Valley

The Greenbrier Valley Pasture Network will be holding their first annual farm tour weekend October 5-6, 2013. Participating farms will open their gates the public, offering a unique look at their farming operations and pasture-raised livestock. To participate in this self-guided tour, purchase a $25 pass per vehicle in advance through eventbrite. Purchase of the pass provides everyone in your vehicle access to the farms between the tour hours of 10 a.m.-4 p.m. each day. Vehicle passes can also be purchased at Swift Level each day of the tour for $30.

Participating farms include Hillyrock Farm, Milligan Creek Farm, Pembroke Farm, Swift Level, Vernal Vibe Rise, and Walkup Farm. Mrs. Martha Holdridge of WestWinds Farm will be providing a special presentation on the environmental implications of pasture raised meat/sustainable agriculture at 9:30 a.m. Saturday and Sunday morning at Swift Level.

A farm dinner featuring a variety of local foods will be held Saturday evening, October 5, at Swift Level. Tickets for the dinner are $75. The farm tour and dinner weekend is a fundraiser for the Greenbrier Valley Pasture Network.

Agricultural Enhancement Program seeking participants

Conservation districts throughout West Virginia are seeking participants for the Agricultural Enhancement Program (AgEP), which provides technical and cost-share assistance for farmers to implement best management practices (BMP).

Practices offered include, but are not limited to, invasive species management, fencing, liming, pasture reseeding and watering systems. Eligibility, practices and cost-share rates vary by conservation district.

Farmers interested in the voluntary program should contact their local conservation district office for more information. Districts and contact information is available at <http://www.wvca.us/map.cfm>, or by calling 304-558-2204.

Tastes of Fall

Jean Smith, Director, WVDA Marketing & Development Division

Happy fall! The beautiful colors of our fall leaves and the cooler weather inspire many of us to try new recipes and in some cases foods. West Virginia is a very "sweet" state. We are fortunate to have approximately 1,000 beekeepers who supply top quality honey to our state and we have a GROWING maple syrup industry. Have you ever tasted real West Virginia Maple Syrup? If not, then we encourage you to do so! Our West Virginia producers not only provide wonderful syrup, but also great maple candies and sugared nuts to name a few of the products. Look for WV honey and maple syrup in your favorite store.

Fall also brings an abundance of apples and pumpkins – there are several festivals throughout the state honoring these two great specialty crops. – Happy Cooking!

Recipes

Apple-Maple Crisp

- 4 large, peeled, thinly sliced McIntosh apples
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ cup real West Virginia maple syrup

Topping:

- 1 cup uncooked rolled oats
- ⅔ cup flour
- ½ cup sliced almonds
- 2 tablespoons canola oil
- 2 tablespoons real West Virginia maple syrup
- 1 teaspoon almond extract

Mix apples, lemon juice, cinnamon and syrup in large mixing bowl. Mix topping ingredients in separate bowl; set aside.

Grease a 9"x13" baking dish; spread apple mixture across the bottom of pan. Cover with foil and bake at 350°F for 30-40 minutes or until apples are tender. Spread topping evenly over the apples and return pan to oven. Bake an additional 20-30 minutes, uncovered at 350°F until topping is crisp.

Note: Top with fresh whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

Honey Mustard Pretzel Chicken

Courtesy : National Honey Board

- 2 cups panko crumbs
- 2 cups pretzel crumbs
- ½ cup olive oil
- ½ cup Dijon mustard
- ⅔ cup WV honey
- ½ cup bottled water

- 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- Coarse salt and fresh ground black pepper
- 1½ pounds boneless chicken breasts
- ½ cup flour, plus more if needed

Preheat oven to 400°F. Lightly oil a large, non-stick baking sheet or roasting pan. If you don't have a non-stick pan line a regular pan with parchment and lightly oil.

In large skillet over medium heat, toast the panko crumbs until lightly golden, stirring constantly. Remove from the pan and cool.

In food processor pulse the pretzels until coarsely ground (small crumbs with some small pretzel pieces); add to medium bowl and mix with panko crumbs. Wipe crumbs out of food processor.

Dressing: Add oil, mustard, honey, water and vinegar to food processor; pulse until smooth.

Season with salt and pepper. Taste and adjust the flavor to suit your own tastes by adding more mustard or honey.

Pound the chicken breasts out to an even thickness using a mallet. Season well with salt and pepper.

Set up dredging station: Pour half of the dressing into large shallow bowl or dish, put the flour on large plate and add half the pretzel mixture to large, shallow bowl or dish (add the remaining half pretzel crumbs to the dish as needed).

Working one at a time and using tongs dredge the chicken in the flour then into the dressing allowing excess to drip off then into the pretzel crumbs patting them on if needed. Place on greased baking sheet.

Bake 16-25 minutes depending on their thickness/size or until cooked through (internal temperature 165 - 174°F.)

Let the chicken sit 5 minutes before serving. Serve with the remaining honey mustard dressing.

Upside Down Apple Pie

Compliments of Ceredo-Kenova (C-K) Autumn Fest
Peggy Workman

Topping:

- 3 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ½ cup pecans, chopped

Filling:

- 5 cups apples, peeled and sliced
- 4 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- ¾ cups granulated sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 Pillsbury Ready Crusts

Preheat oven at 350°F. To prepare topping, melt the butter in pie plate. Add brown sugar and chopped nuts and mix well. Spread evenly over the bottom of the pie plate. Press one ready crust over the mixture in the bottom of the pie plate. Press firmly in bottom and up the sides of the pie plate.

To prepare filling, place sliced apples, flour, granulated sugar, salt and cinnamon in a large bowl and mix well. Place apple mixture in pie crust already in the pie pan. Top mixture with the second pie crust and seal edges together. Bake at 350°F for 50 minutes. Remove from oven and invert on a serving platter. Serve warm with vanilla ice cream or cool whip.

When the temperatures cool in late summer many turn to the forests and start sawing, splitting and stacking firewood for later use. This allows the wood to season before needed and, with the lower moisture content, will provide far more heat/volume ratio.

There are many forest pests, some native and some invasive, who spend at least part of their lives on or beneath the bark of trees and are not apparent to the naked eye. Some are specific to a particular species of tree while others have a wide host range. Because of this, firewood is a severe threat to the spread of some damaging pests like gypsy moth, emerald ash borer, Asian longhorned beetle and the more recent walnut twig beetle.

Many states have quarantines devised to prevent the importation of pests on firewood and other wood products. In many cases all hardwood firewood is regulated regardless of species. Some pests are actually regulated by the United States Department of Agriculture and firewood is prohibited to move across state lines without a required inspection. Currently in West Virginia there is no quarantine that specifically regulates firewood movement between counties of the state. That does not mean it is wise to do so. All of the previously mentioned insects are of concern in West Virginia. Not all parts of the state are infested with any of them and communities that are not infested would, most assuredly, like to keep it that way.

Please make an effort to haul firewood only short distances for use especially when the tree was unhealthy before you cut it. Moving ash firewood is likely to move emerald ash borer larvae from one area of the state to another. The larvae will later mature and breed in new areas. When moving any hardwood firewood into the state contact the WVDA Plant Industries Division at 304/558-2212 to inquire about possible quarantine issues regarding walnut twig beetle and Thousand Cankers Disease. Also if crossing state lines it would be wise to contact the USDA Animal Plant Health Inspection Service at 304/343-8588 to inquire about federal firewood issues.

If you have questions about this article or other plant regulatory issues, contact the West Virginia Department of Agriculture, Plant Industries Division 304/558-2212.

Fiesta Pie

1st Place – Quick and Easy Beef Contest – State Fair of West Virginia
Sandra Perry – Ronceverte, WV

2 tablespoons yellow cornmeal
1 refrigerated pie crust
1¼ pound ground beef
½ cup bell pepper, diced
½ cup onion, diced

Salt to taste
Pepper to taste
1½ teaspoons chipotle seasoning
1½ cups corn and bean salsa
2 cups shredded Mexican blend cheese

Preheat oven to 425°F. Sprinkle pie plate with one tablespoon of cornmeal. Place refrigerated pie crust into pie plate. Sprinkle crust with the remaining tablespoon of cornmeal. Place pie crust into preheated oven and bake for five minutes less than the recommended baking time.

While pie crust is baking, brown ground beef, pepper and onion in skillet and cook until no pink remains in ground beef. Stir in salt, pepper and chipotle seasoning. Add salsa and one cup of the shredded cheese into the beef mixture and stir lightly. Place beef mixture into baked pie crust and top with the remaining cup of shredded cheese. Return to oven for 5 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Serve sliced pie with toppings of choice, such as shredded lettuce and sour cream.

Pumpkin Patches, Hay & Corn Mazes

Back in Season

If you and your family are wondering where the closest places are to find the family pumpkin, take a hay ride, or get lost in a corn maze this season, look no further. West Virginia is full of agritourism venues to help get you in the fall spirit.

ARNOLD FARM – Romney, WV – Come here to pick your pumpkins that have already been gathered from the field and then take a tractor-pulled hayride out to the corn maze. There's also a special haunted corn maze if you want to stick around in the evenings. For more info call 304-822-3603.

Brookedale Farms – Keyser, WV – Come take a hayride out to the corn maze! This farm is open every weekend and has big activities for the fall like the 10th Annual "Fall Feast-Off" where you can help judge local foods, check out local crafts, and hear down-home music. Stick around in the evenings and you can participate in an old-fashioned wienee roast and flashlight mazes. Find more info at brookedalefarm.com.

BYRNSIDE BRANCH FARMS – Union, WV – You and your family can take a hay ride or a horse-drawn wagon ride to the pumpkin patch to pick out your pumpkins for the fall season. Afterward you can check out the hay and corn mazes and even kick back and enjoy a camp fire. This site opens September 20th. Find more info at byrnsidebranchfarm.com.

COOPER FAMILY FARMS – Milton, WV – Kids can take a ride on the "cow train," or try to navigate the "corn crawl crib" before they head to the pumpkin patch to pick out the family pumpkin. This year you can navigate through the corn maze by using your smartphone as a trivia sheet or, if you're brave enough, stick around for an evening in the haunted maze. But at least stay around to roast s'mores over the camp fire before you go home. Find more info at cooperfamilyfarms.net.

GRITT'S FARM – Buffalo, WV – Here you can find pumpkins for sale in the shop, at the farm stand, or pick them out yourself in the pumpkin patch. You can also find all sorts of different mazes here – a corn maze, a haunted corn maze, a kiddie (mini) corn maze, a straw maze or a hay bale maze. For more info call 304-937-2565.

KIRKWOOD WINERY – Summersville, WV – This year the winery hosts the 22nd Annual Grape Stompin' Festival and this family-friendly atmosphere gives you a chance to visit the famous Isaiah Morgan Distillery. While you're there, kick your shoes off and stomp some grapes of your own. You can get in on the fun September 21st and 22nd. Find more info at kirkwood-wine.com.

LITTLE PATCH ON THE LANE – Teays Valley, WV – Stop by and pick your pumpkin right out of the patch in Putnam County. For more info call 304-541-1649.

MORGAN ORCHARD – Union, WV – Find not only the perfect pumpkins, but luscious apples, peaches and more in the heart of Monroe County. You can go out to the orchard to pick your produce, or simply walk in and buy at the farm store. While you're there make sure to have a nice warm cup of apple cider. Find more info at morganorchardwv.com.

NICKY'S GARDEN CENTER – Wheeling, WV – At the base of Oglebay Park Hill you'll find a corn maze and pumpkins brought to you straight from the field. Find more info at nickysgc.com.

OKES FAMILY FARM – Cool Ridge, WV – Take a free hayride to the four-acre field and pick out your own pumpkins and gourds for the fall season. The big field opens September 21st and that will be your best chance to get the biggest pumpkins. While you're there check out the corn maze and other weekend activities like face painting and pumpkin carving and painting. Find more info at okesfamilyfarms.com.

OLD MCDONALD'S PUMPKIN PATCH & CORN MAZE – Inwood, WV – Starting September 21st, come pick out your fall pumpkins, gourds and winter squash at Old McDonald's. Afterward, catch a hayride before you head to the huge corn maze. Make sure to let the kids check out the "Kiddie Korn Kastle" and let them play in hundreds of pounds of shelled corn. Find more info at oldmcdonaldspumpkinpatch.com.

ORR'S FARM MARKET – Martinsburg, WV – Check out the pumpkin patch and corn mazes here in the eastern panhandle of West Virginia. Fall Farm Days kicks off September 21st with pumpkin patch hayrides, bluegrass music and good food. Find more info at orrsfarmmarket.com.

RIDGEFIELD FARMS – Martinsburg, WV – Pumpkin Fest kicks off September 28th with no shortage of activities. Enjoy hayrides a confusing corn maze, or pick out your own pumpkin in the big pumpkin patch after you visit the country store. And if you're around on the weekend check out "Haunting Season" on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. Find more info at ridgefieldfarm.com.

STILES PUMPKIN FARM – Charles Town, WV – Through the month of October you can stop by to pick your pumpkin, go for a hay ride, or take a chance navigating the straw maze. For more info call 304-725-6026.

TOWN & COUNTRY NURSERY – Kearneysville, WV – Come out from mid-September to October to catch a tractor ride out to the corn and hay mazes. Make sure to grab a pumpkin for the fall season before you head home. You can find more info on their Facebook page or Town & Country Nursery or call 304-725-1252.

V & J FARMS – Scott Depot, WV – Have a picnic or go on a hayride before you head out to the pumpkin patch to pick out your family pumpkin. For more info call 304-755-4300.

WV Farm Museum hosting annual Fall Fest Oct. 5-6

The West Virginia Farm Museum will host its annual Fall Festival Oct. 5-6 on the grounds of the museum, just north of Point Pleasant in Mason County.

"The Farm Museum is a fascinating attraction and the Fall Fest is a great chance for everyone to experience West Virginia agriculture and history," said Commissioner of Agriculture Walt Helmick.

Events slated for the weekend include:

- Antique Tractor Pull (Saturday only at 1 p.m.)
- Church Service in log church (Sunday at 9 a.m.)
- Gospel Sing (Sunday at 1:30 p.m.)

Other attractions include the antique gas & engine show, Gravely swap meet, apple butter and cider making, sorghum making, a working sawmill, antique bottle show, clogging, daily entertainment, country store and kitchen and a quilt show.

The Museum includes a building full of antique farm equipment, as well as historical buildings that have been moved to the grounds throughout the years. It is open Tuesday-Saturday from 9 a.m.- 5 p.m. April 1 through Nov. 15.

For more information, visit wvfarmmuseum.org, e-mail wvsfm@wvfarmmuseum.org, or call 304-675-5737.

2013 Draft Pull STATE FAIR of West Virginia

Draft horses "Jake and Todd" took the 2013 State Fair title with a pull of 11' 2" at 7,500 pounds. They are owned by Ira Greene of Lenoir, N.C., and were driven by Sterling Gillum. From left are Lenoir, Commissioner of Agriculture Walt Helmick, Rita Helmick, unidentified team member and West Virginia Association of Fairs and Festivals Queen Nichole Greene of Kanawha County.

Ron Oakleaf, right, of Tiffin, Ohio, drove both the second and third place teams in the 2013 State Fair of West Virginia horse pull competition. He's pictured here with "Cap and Pete," exhibited by Russell Oakleaf of Tiffin, Ohio, who finished second with a pull of 8' 7" at 7,500 pounds. Also pictured are Commissioner of Agriculture Walt Helmick, Rita Helmick and West Virginia Association of Fairs and Festivals Queen Nichole Greene of Kanawha County. The third place team of "Dan and Ted" were both exhibited and driven by Ron Oakleaf.
